Los Angeles – The City of Los Angeles Department of Cultural Affairs is pleased to announce Hollyhock House Rediscovered, an upcoming exhibition of work by renowned photographer Julius Shulman in Barnsdall Park's Hollyhock House Gallery. April 6, 2006, marked Shulman's 70th anniversary as a photographer. His work began in 1936 with a Kodak vest pocket camera at Richard Neutra's Kun residence in the Hollywood Hills. Ever since, Shulman's photographs appear in virtually every major architectural magazine in the world. After a lapse of 35 years since his last exhibition in Barnsdall Park, the Hollyhock House Gallery is offering a rare opportunity to view an historic combination of 1964, 1968 and 2005 photographs by Shulman, 28 images in total. And in addition there is a reproduction of a personal letter to Mr. Shulman from Frank Lloyd Wright.

All 28 photographic images on view will be available for purchase via an ongoing silent auction that begins at the opening of exhibition on June 30 and concludes at the end of exhibition on August 20 at 5 p.m.

Shulman has generously agreed to donate all proceeds of the Hollyhock House Rediscovered silent art auction to Hollyhock House. Shulman's gift will help raise monies for future restoration work on Hollyhock House and related educational programming through the Park's Museum Education and Tours Program.

The J. Paul Getty Research Institute has particular interest in the work of Julius Shulman, and has recently acquired his archives. At the age of 95 he stays active and continues to accomplish more than ever.

There will also be a Family Photography Workshop at Hollyhock House with Hollyhock House Education staff on Sunday, August 6th from 10:00a.m.-12:30p.m.. Parents can bring their children for a free workshop focused on the art and practice of photography. The workshop is limited to 30 people. Reservations are necessary. Please call Sara or Gabe for information and reservations at 323/644-6269.
