ARTS JOURNALISM PARTICIPATION

The Community Arts Journalism Program, a new initiative from the DCA Grants Office, supports the entrepreneurial engagement of young writers, photographers, and media makers (ages 18-24) in documenting, summarizing, or promoting DCA funded organizations. The purpose of this program is to encourage and support new grassroots arts journalism, and when possible to increase the visibility of projects produced by DCA grantees. Finished community journalism projects will be approved by DCA for web, social media, or grantee use; and DCA will pay a small stipend to each successful journalist for the release of his/her materials.

By signing below, grantee agrees to participate in the community arts journalism program by allowing DCA to list grantee name and contact information to prospective young journalists. Your signature below also certifies your willingness to coordinate your organization's interaction with the young journalists, including providing the necessary contact information, appropriate access and program material required by a journalist to properly write about any of the organization's programs during the grant period.

I hereby agree to the above-stated terms and conditions.
