Dear Friends,

While February marks Black History Month, we know that there is no American history without Black history. The immeasurable contributions of Black America continue to this day, from City Halls across the nation, to the halls of Congress, to corporate boardrooms, to grassroots activists fighting to hold America accountable to its promise of equality for all.

In every corner of our city, Black Angelenos have helped to shape the look, sound, and feel of Los Angeles, all the way back to our city’s founding.

As the first Black woman to have the privilege of serving as Mayor of Los Angeles, I take special pride in joining all Angelenos in celebrating African American Heritage Month.

I hope you will use this calendar and cultural guide created by our Department of Cultural Affairs (DCA) to learn about the many exciting activities, both virtual and in-person, happening this month.

I offer you all my best wishes for memorable celebrations, and for the recognition of the contributions made by African Americans this month and every month.

Sincerely,

KAREN BASS
MAYOR
CITY OF LOS ANGELES

Dear Friends,

As President of the Los Angeles City Council, I am proud to join in the celebration of African American Heritage Month. Black merchants, entrepreneurs, professionals, artisans, and artists have been a vibrant presence in our city for over 240 years. We should not forget that more than half of the 44 pobladores who founded our city in 1781 were men and women of African descent. This month, we honor the achievements of Black Angelenos and pay tribute to their monumental contributions to the history and culture of Los Angeles.

In this publication, the Department of Cultural Affairs (DCA) highlights the work of our city’s outstanding African American artists and cultural organizations. Their work illuminates the achievements of our past, the challenges of our present, and our aspirations for the future.

To mark this occasion, DCA is also presenting numerous public events, performances, and cultural activities for your enjoyment. I encourage you to explore this calendar and discover the wealth of festivals, concerts, theatrical performances, film screenings, poetry readings, and other cultural activities.

When the events of a given day threaten to divide us, it is a tonic for the soul to reflect on the indispensable contributions that African Americans have long made and continue to make to the life of our city. I hope you will take this opportunity to learn more about this vital component of the heritage we all share as residents of Los Angeles.

Very truly yours,

PAUL KREKORIAN
LOS ANGELES CITY COUNCIL PRESIDENT
COUNCILMAN, DISTRICT 2

Dear Friends:

Welcome to the 2024 African American History Month Celebration. Each year we are pleased to celebrate the national theme selected by the Association for the Study of African American Life and History. This year’s theme is: African Americans and the Arts.

The artistic expressions of African influence are widely recognized and accepted worldwide in many forms of art, both ancient and modern. We see the African influence in many forms of visual art, in performing arts, and in the current digital and technical spaces we observe throughout the world.

Los Angeles is the place where we own a unique history. Our founding includes 44 families. More than half of those families were of African influence. This makes Los Angeles one of the nation’s largest cities with a multicultural background. Today as we aspire to embrace this unique history, we also aim to resolve the critical problems such as homelessness, unemployment, and the need for equity and inclusion in the programs we administer here in the City of Los Angeles.

We are America’s showcase of dynamic international, artistic, and economic opportunity. The challenges we confront to operate a sustainable future for the nation’s second largest city we take with the greatest responsibility. Our commitment to the African American community is just as promising as it was in our founding historically.

Even though they were here from day one, the first migration of African Americans after WWI; and, the second migration of African Americans after WWII, brought with it the artistic, economic, political and social contribution to make Los Angeles the great city it is today. In the fields of visual arts, film, television, radio, digital, creative arts, graphic arts, and all other forms of art in Los Angeles, African Americans are significant contributors in Los Angeles society.

Very truly yours,

DR. MICHAEL R. DAVIS
PRESIDENT, PRO TEMPORE
LOS ANGELES BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS
CHAIR, AFRICAN AMERICAN HERITAGE MONTH

Dear Friends,

The Department of Cultural Affairs is pleased to present the 2024 artwork and calendar of events celebrating the thriving African American community of Los Angeles. In this publication, we honor the extraordinary spectrum of African American experiences and cultural traditions transforming our society into an exciting and creative city.

In this annual celebration of the African American community, we recognize the community’s experiences, reflections, vision, and impact on Los Angeles. The guide amplifies established and rising artists by creating a platform in which they can express their joy, pain, and spirit informed by their histories, traditions, values, and knowledge. During this time of heightened racism and division, all those who contribute to the production and the programing of the calendar know that their work supports our City’s larger goals to foster the wellbeing of our communities for the greater good.

I extend my appreciation for the work of the members of Our Authors Study Club, Inc., the 2024 African American Heritage Month Committee, the Mayor’s Office, the Controller’s Office, the City Attorney’s Office, the City Council Offices, and the Board of Public Works. Their assistance in identifying and recruiting the many nonprofit organizations, community groups, arts organizations, artists, and activists supported the creation of this impressive publication full of fun, educational, and stimulating events.

In showcasing a selection of contemporary artworks produced by Los Angeles African American artists, we pay homage to the local and national sacrifices and contributions made toward establishing an equal and equitable society for all.

I hope you enjoy the fantastic art within this calendar and revisit it in the future to, not only draw inspiration from, but, be reminded of our City’s great and long-standing African American heritage.

Sincerely,

Under the leadership of Bakewell Jr., the historic newspaper’s distribution has expanded by adding home delivery, launching social media channels, and establishing a weekly e-paper, reaching over 250,000 readers.

Bakewell Jr. is a producer of the annual Taste of Soul Family Festival, a free daylong event offering shopping, entertainment, job information, health screenings, and more. This event generates more than $50 million in revenues for Black businesses throughout L.A. County. 2024 NATIONAL THEME

AFRICAN AMERICANS AND THE ARTS

Let us banish fear. We have been in this mental state for three centuries. I am a radical. I am ready to act if I can find brave men to help me.

Carter G. Woodson
The importance of Black history in restoring America's soul lies in acknowledging the contributions of African Americans and focusing on the adversities and victories of Black individuals and institutions that have significantly molded and enriched the history, culture, and identity of our nation. Drawing attention to the difficulties faced by Black individuals throughout history, we endorse their value and honor their resilience and inner strength in the face of tremendous adversity. This acknowledgment not only confirms the inherent value and dignity of Black lives but also challenges deeply rooted stereotypes, inaccuracies, and misconceptions that have fueled discrimination and perpetuated inequality. By weaving the lessons and experiences of Black history into the nation's overarching narrative, America can genuinely embrace the significance and critical need for diversity.

Because the struggle for equality was never finished, recognizing the worth and dignity of Black individuals remains a crucial endpoint for revitalizing America's spirit. Doubly emphasizing the conflicts and triumphs in Black history, this continual struggle validates the experiences of African Americans, affirming their inherent value and dignity by acknowledging the limitless impediments they have courageously overcome yet continue to confront in the noble quest for equal rights. Such accounts often motivate individuals to actively push for equality in their own communities.

The restoration of America's soul is not just about acknowledging historical errors but entails an active pursuit towards a future where equality, respect, and diversity are valued and championed. Inspiring future Black leaders is a key factor in this endeavor. By highlighting the accomplishments and impact made by Black leaders throughout history, we inspire young minds to treasure their heritage with a sense of purpose and ambition, empowering them to comprehend their innate capacity—bequeathed by their ancestors—for the perseverance necessary in the continued struggle for equality. In this light, the commemoration of Black history not only reminds us of the richness, diversity, and deep American roots of Black culture, but it ignites a purpose and serves as a requisite for Black youth to proudly connect with their heritage with the acceptance of an honorable legacy.

Challenging stereotypes and misconceptions are essential to dismantling obstacles for the renewal of America's soul. Exploring the endlessly rich archives of Black history reveals the remarkable achievements and contributions African Americans have made that have too often been overlooked or completely ignored. With the full recognition of these countless accomplishments and contributions to America, a newfound understanding arises that assertively counters the prevailing stereotypes and misleading narratives that perpetuate systemic racism that marginalizes and undervalues Black lives and their stories.

Dispelling such erroneous perceptions will indeed lay the foundation for a society that embraces diversity and equal rights. This recognition ultimately enables everyone to appreciate the worth and dignity of African American individuals, fostering a sense of community and identity for all.

The importance of Black history cannot be overstated when it comes to promoting healing and reconciliation in America. By diligently recognizing and learning about the struggles and triumphs of Black individuals and institutions, we can begin to face the deep pain stemming from long entrenched racial inequality and prejudice. The numerous chronicles of resilience and fortitude inherent in our history can enlighten and provide pathways to mutual understanding and recovery. Acknowledging the deep influence of Black Americans and their important role in shaping our national history can help heal rifts in society by fostering empathy and respect for one another. In this way, Black history secures its role as a dynamic catalyst to ignite meaningful dialogue and reconciliation, thus laying the groundwork for a more inclusive America.
On September 9, 1915, Dr. Carter G. Woodson held a meeting in Chicago, Illinois with Alexander L. Jackson, Executive Secretary of the new Negro YMCA branch. In addition to Woodson and Jackson, three other men were present: George Cleveland Hall, W. B. Hartgrove, and J. E. Stamps. At this meeting they formed the Association for the Study of Negro Life and History (ASALH) and appointed Dr. Woodson, Executive Director, a post he held until his death on April 3, 1950. Today, this organization is known as the Association for the Study of African American Life and History, Inc. (ASALH). Its headquarters is currently on the campus of Howard University in Washington, DC.

In Los Angeles, a group of Terminal Annex postal workers brought their proposal to read the works of African American authors and learn the true history of Africans in the Americas to Mrs. Vassie Davis Wright, and Our Authors Study Club (OASC) was formed on February 14, 1945. Mrs. Wright recommended that the group affiliate itself with Dr. Woodson’s organization, and Dr. Carter G. Woodson, himself, chartered Our Authors Study Club as the Los Angeles Branch of ASALH in June 1945. OASC was incorporated as a California nonprofit organization in 1946.

Our Authors Study Club, Inc. began citywide celebrations for what was Negro History Week in 1947. In 1950, Los Angeles Mayor Fletcher Bowron issued the first proclamation acknowledging Our Authors Study Club, Inc. as the primary sponsor of Negro History Week and invited citizens of Los Angeles to join the celebration. In 1959, while serving as General Chairperson for Negro History Week, the late Gilbert Lindsay moved the Opening Ceremony to City Hall steps where the celebration now takes place every year, weather permitting. In the year of the nation’s Bicentennial, 1976, the celebration was expanded to the entire month of February and is now known as African American History Month.

OASC continues its original mission and now offers programs that include: a Reading Program for elementary school students; an Oratorical Contest for high school students; scholarships for deserving college students seeking a bachelor’s degree; and a fellowship for Ph.D. candidates researching African American history, literature, and/or culture. Additional activities include an annual Tour of African American Landmarks in Los Angeles, and the Dr. Carter G. Woodson Scholarship and Awards Luncheon where the accomplishments of extraordinary African Americans are recognized.

Our Authors Study Club, Inc. also supports the restoration of Dr. Carter G. Woodson’s home in Washington, DC, now declared a National Historic Site, and partners with community organizations including the Black Hollywood Education and Resource Center (BHERC) and the Sigma Sigma Alumnae Chapter of Sigma Gamma Rho Sorority, Inc.

The Carter G. Woodson Home National Historic Site is a tribute to the late American educator and scholar, Carter G. Woodson. The circa 1870s home of Dr. Woodson is being restored in collaboration with the Association for the Study of African American Life and History, Inc. (ASALH) and the National Park Service (NPS). When the site is finished, in mid-2024, visitors will have the rare chance to see the exact location where Dr. Woodson lived and worked as he and ASALH brought African American history to life.

Born in 1875, Woodson was the son of former slaves and had limited educational opportunities. He worked in the coalfields of Huntington, West Virginia earning his diploma at Douglass High School. Woodson later obtained his first collegiate degree from Berea College in Kentucky and continued his education at the University of Chicago. In 1912, he earned his Ph.D. from Harvard University, making him the second Black American and the first person of enslaved parents to receive such a degree.

Woodson founded The Association for the Study of Negro Life and History (ASLNH) in 1915, to inform the American public about the contributions of Black Americans in the formation of the country and its history and culture. Headquartered in Washington, DC, Woodson resided on the second floor from 1922 to 1950. On July 18, 1922, Dr. Woodson paid $8,000.00 for the acquisition of 1538 Ninth Street in Northwest, Washington, D.C. He would go on to use his “office-home,” as it was so popularly dubbed, to further his goals of institutionalizing, popularizing, and advancing scholarly study of Black history. The Journal of Negro History, The Negro History Bulletin, and the establishment of "Negro History Week" in 1926 were all based out of his home, which also housed Associated Publishers, Inc. Dr. Pero Dagbovie claims that Woodson "wrote and dictated numerous books, letters, memos, announcements, and essays in the comfort of his office-home to his secretaries and stenographers."

Prominent members of the early Black History Movement, future historians and academics including John Hope Franklin, Lorenzo Johnson Greene, Luther Porter Jackson, Rayford W. Logan, Charles H. Wesley, and Lawrence Dunbar Reddick, were either employed by Woodson or looked to him for advice and mentoring. The house served as “a training school for future historians who learned much from [a] master craftsman” and an important mentorship center. Woodson employed the well-known poet and eventual leader of the Harlem Renaissance, Langston Hughes, in the 1920s. "My job was to open the office in the mornings, keep it clean, wrap and mail books, assist in answering the mail, read proofs, bank the furnace at night when Dr. Woodson was away, and do anything else that came to hand which the secretaries could not do," Hughes later recalled of his time working with Woodson.
Woodson's office and library were located on the second story of his residence, and his temporary archives were located in the basement. Rare items and collections that captured the experiences of African Americans and others in the African Diaspora were saved by him. He wrote in his 1941 annual report, "The Association... has an additional 1,000 or more manuscripts on hand in its fireproof safe in the national office. These will be turned over to the Library of Congress as soon as they can be properly sorted." The most illustrious African Americans, such as Francis J. Grimke, Charles Young, Frederick Douglass, Booker T. Washington, and Richard Theodore Greener, are represented in these documents through priceless letters.

The Carter G. Woodson Home National Historic Site was added to the national park system as the 389th unit in 2006. It is obvious that Woodson's office-home served a variety of functions and will continue to inspire and benefit upcoming generations.

Carter G. Woodson's most famous contribution is the celebration of Negro History Week every February, which began in 1926 and later became a celebratory month in 1976. Now known as Black History Month it is celebrated broadly across the country.

This year, extend your opportunity to learn more about Dr. Woodson, and plan your visit to his home when it opens to the public in late 2024. For updates on this important project, visit The National Parks website at nps.gov/cawo/index.htm. For more information about Dr. Woodson visit, asalh.org.
On February 14, 1945, Mrs. Wright and a few Terminal Annex Postal Workers established Our Authors Study Club, Inc. with the goal of reading and analyzing the works of African American authors, studying their histories, and discovering the real history of African Americans in the Diaspora. Dr. Carter G. Woodson organized the group to join his Association for the Study of African Life and History, Inc. in June 1945.

Mrs. Wright also contributed to the establishment of lending libraries at the Henderson Community Center of the Second Baptist Church, the YMCA, and the YWCA. Among the other noteworthy accomplishments were the introduction of a Black History curriculum in the adult education divisions of the Los Angeles Unified School District and the first citywide Negro History Week celebration in Los Angeles.

Mrs. Wright received her education in Denver, Colorado’s public schools. She completed her graduate studies in teaching at the University of Kansas after earning her degree from Western University in Kansas City. She studied sociology and business administration at the University of Southern California Extension after relocating to California.

Mrs. Wright gained notoriety for her skills as a civic worker, socialite, and organizer and was a dedicated and involved member of Second Baptist Church, a real estate broker, an activist in the community, and a member of Sigma Gamma Rho Sorority, Inc. where she established the OASC Oratorical Contest jointly with Sigma Gamma Rho Sorority, Inc. Los Angeles Chapter. Mrs. Wright was also responsible for organizing several community groups as a member.

On December 6, 1899, in Paola, Kansas, Mrs. Vassie D. Wright was born. Her parents were Samuel Davis and Lula Ann (Pertilla) Davis. On March 20, 1983, she passed away in Los Angeles, California leaving a legacy of community impact so meaningful that the Jefferson Library Branch in Los Angeles City was renamed the Jefferson-Vassie D. Wright library on June 5, 1985. It is located at 2211 West Jefferson Boulevard, Los Angeles, California, 90018.
James Baldwin stated “a society must assume that it is stable, but the artist must know, and he must let us know, that there is nothing stable under heaven.” Thus, the 2024 national Black History theme highlights African Americans and the Arts; writers, musicians, visual artists, thespians, dancers, vocalists, culinarians, designers and all other creatives richly contribute to our sense of value, worth and pre-Western ideals and identity – as African peoples. Concurrently, Africans in the Americas conflate ethnic experiences throughout the English, Spanish, Dutch, French, German, Indigenous and Creole speaking places into one Black expression of being. Our ancestors used their whole bodies, voices, words, and expressions to claim a seat at the table of humankind as well as proclaim their ancient authority as people of Alkebu-lan.

Dr. Carter G. Woodson and Mrs. Mary McLeod Bethune together innovated the Negro History Bulletin in 1936 to inform children, educators and the general public through illustrated historical essays. Howard University professor of art Lois Mailou Jones provided illustrations for the Bulletin. Today through the Black History Bulletin, the Association continues to utilize stimulating images to draw readers into articles about African American history and culture.

Concurrently, African American artists are located in the pages of the Journal of Negro History now the Journal of African American History. Beginning in 1916 the Journal published scholarly articles on creatives are researched, profiled and shared within Journal articles. In 1916 author A.O. Stafford wrote about Antar, the Arabian Negro warrior, poet and hero. Stafford wrote “[t]hat men of Negro blood should rise to distinction in Arabia is not at all singular [with its] proximity to Africa.” A child of an African mother and white father, Antar wrote of love and war. He was remembered as a model of valor, poetic genius, and magnanimity.

In closing, join the Association in celebrating African Americans and the Arts. There are myriad outlets and opportunities to identify African American creatives of today, yesterday and antiquity. Challenge yourself, your community and your family to explore how the arts contribute to our understanding of self, family, nation and world. Congratulations Our Author’s Study Club in your tradition of bringing African American history, culture and conversation to the general public. For more information please visit asalh.org.

African American art is infused with African, Caribbean, and the Black American lived experiences. In the fields of visual and performing arts, literature, fashion, folklore, language, film, music, architecture, culinary and other forms of cultural expression, the African American influence has been paramount. African American artists have used art to preserve history and community memory as well as for empowerment. Artistic and cultural movements such as the New Negro, Black Arts, Black Renaissance, hip-hop, and Afrofuturism, have been led by people of African descent and set the standard for popular trends around the world. In 2024, we examine the varied history and life of African American arts and artisans.

For centuries Western intellectuals denied or minimized the contributions of people of African descent to the arts as well as history, even as their artistry in many genres was mimicked and/or stolen. However, we can still see the unbroken chain of Black art production from antiquity to the present, from Egypt across Africa, from Europe to the New World. Prior to the American Revolution, enslaved Africans of the Lowcountry began their more than a 300-year tradition of making baskets, revealing their visual artistry via craft.

The suffering of those in bondage gave birth to the spirituals, the nation’s first contribution to music. Blues musicians such as Robert Johnson, McKinley ‘Muddy Waters’ Morganfield and Riley “BB” B. King created and nurtured a style of music that became the bedrock for gospel, soul, and other still popular (and evolving) forms of music. Black contributions to literature include works by poets like Phillis Wheatley, essays, autobiographies, and novels by writers such as David Walker and Maria Stewart. Black aesthetics have also been manifested through sculptors like Edmonia Lewis and painters like Henry O. Tanner.

In the 1920s and 30s, the rise of the Black Renaissance and New Negro Movement brought the Black Arts to an international stage. Members of the armed forces, such as James Reese Europe, and artists such as Langston Hughes, Josephine Baker, and Lois Mailou Jones brought Black culture and Black American aesthetics internationally, and Black culture began its ascent to becoming a dominant cultural movement to the world. In addition to the Harlem Renaissance, today we recognize that cities like Los Angeles, Chicago, and New Orleans also were home to many Black artists.

The 1960s continued this thread through the cultural evolution known as the Black Arts Movement, where artists covered issues such as pride in one’s heritage and established art galleries and museum exhibitions to show their own work, as well as publications such as Black Art. This period brought us artists such as Alvin Ailey, Judith Jamison, Amiri Baraka, Nikki Giovanni and Sonia Sanchez. The movement would not have been as impactful without the influences from the broader Black world, especially the Negritude movement and the writings of Frantz Fanon.

In 1973, in the Bronx, New York Black musicians (i.e. DJ Kool Herc and Coke La Rock) started a new genre of music called hip-hop, which comprises five foundational elements (DJing, MCing, Graffiti, Break Dancing and Beat Boxing). Hip-hop performers also used technological equipment such as turntables, synthesizers, drum machines, and samplers to make their songs. Since then, hip-hop has continued to be a pivotal force in political, social, and cultural spaces and was a medium where issues such as racial violence in the inner city, sexism, economic disinvestment, and others took the forefront.

The term Afrofuturism was used approximately 30 years ago in an effort to define cultural and artistic productions (music, literature, visual arts, etc.) that imagine a future for Black people without oppressive systems and examines how Black history and knowledge intersects with technology and science. Afrofuturist elements can be found in the music of Sun Ra, Rahsaan Roland Kirk, Janelle Monáe and Jimi Hendrix. Other examples include sci-fi writer Octavia Butler’s novels, Marvel film Black Panther, and artists such as British-Liberian painter Lina Iris Viktor, Kenyan-born sculptor Wangechi Mutu, and Caribbean writers and artists such as Nalo Hopkinson, and Grace Jones.

In celebrating the entire history of African Americans and the Arts, the Association for the Study of African American Life and History (ASALH) puts into the national spotlight the richness of the past and present with an eye towards what the rest of the twenty-first century will bring. ASALH dedicates its 98th Annual Black History Theme to African Americans and the Arts. For more information please visit asalh.org.
Dr. Toni Mokjaetji C. Humber was a native Angeleno who traced her family heritage in Los Angeles to the early 1900s. Growing up in a fast-changing world in the 1950s and 1960s, infused her with the belief that education was vital pathway to achieving justice and equality. She was a distinguished scholar, a woman extremely proud of her Blackness and expressed it in her academic research, her lectures, and her presentations. When you saw Dr. Humber, you saw flowing robes, Afrocentric jewelry, and a woman always energetic and on the move ready to share knowledge. You saw what Ndebele Tribe of South Africa named her in 1995, “Mokjaetji” an Angel, Spirit of Africa.

Dr. Humber was the first OASC Graduate Scholarship recipient. She never forgot that support and used her talent and skills to support the organization as the Vice President and Chair of the Scholarship Committee. Working very closely with the students each year as a mentor.

However, it was her keen interest in African and African American culture and history, which led her to begin leading African American Heritage Tours of Los Angeles in 1985 until her passing. She also co-led Our Authors Study Club, Inc. (OASC) Black History Tours of Los Angeles each year since the 1990s. Both tours celebrate the cultural and historical accomplishments of the African and Mexican founders of Los Angeles and their descendants, the many African Americans who contributed to the greatness of Los Angeles, and locations often overlooked or hidden sites of African American historical and cultural significance.

Dr. Humber authored several research papers. However, her major research, Where Black Is Brown: The African Diaspora in Mexico (WBIB), was most important to her. Developed from her 2003 sabbatical research and subsequent journeys to Mexico to investigate the cultural influences and historical contributions of Africans in Mexico, from the ancient civilization through the colonial enslavement period to contemporary Mexico she designed WBIB to further the understanding of African influence and contributions in the Americas. The intent was to foster greater understanding among African American, Chicano, Latino, and Indigenous communities about their historical connections and their intermingled sangre (blood) that has produced beautiful and dynamic peoples of the Americas. Dr. Humber curated several exhibitions from her WBIB research that included photographs and artifacts.

A world sojourner, Dr. Humber traveled extensively throughout Africa, the Caribbean, Brazil, Panama, and Mexico with a zeal to further her research on African and African American culture and history, ethnic studies, the educational implications of Ebonics, sociolinguistics, and intercultural communication and uncover truths, dispel distorted images, perceptions, and notions about culturally diverse peoples, especially those of African descent.

Dr. Humber loved the art of education. Though she retired in 2010 after a twenty-year career in Ethnic and Women’s Studies she continued to teach at California State Polytechnic University, Pomona as Professor Emeritus until 2016. Her degrees included a bachelor’s degree in sociology from California State University, Los Angeles, a master’s degree in education from Loyola Marymount University, and a doctorate degree in sociolinguistics from Howard University. In 1995 she was named a Fulbright-Hayes Scholar to South Africa to observe the social and political transition after Nelson Mandela became the first Indigenous African president of South Africa.

Dr. Humber was multi-talented. She penned poetry and acquired a vast collection of artwork that is still on display in her home today. She was passionate about building and managing her personal art collection, which included paintings, sculptures, photographs, prints, and many other forms of artistic expression. Dr. Humber also expressed her creativity through her wardrobe and jewelry. She had a deep appreciation for aesthetics, cultural significance, and historical context, and enjoyed sharing her love of art with those around her. She was a patron of the arts commissioning new artworks and supporting emerging artists. She contributed to the preservation of cultural heritage through her engagement in the art world, attending art exhibitions, auctions, and galleries, networking with artists and other collectors, and staying informed about the latest developments in the art market.

As the first recipient of the OASC Graduate Scholarship and an example of someone who left such an indelible mark in “Her-Story” and so many lives; notably the student scholars that Dr. Humber mentored through her work and OASC. Our Authors Study Club, Inc. names in perpetuity the graduate support the Dr. Toni Mokjaetji-Humber Fund to support African American Scholarship at post-doctorate level.

The universe has its own liveliness.
You would be amazed.
Keep that fire alive.

- Dr. Toni Mokjaetji-Humber

MAPPING AN ART WORLD: LOS ANGELES IN THE 1970S-80S

Before the city’s first dedicated contemporary art museum was established, Los Angeles was home to disparate, heterogeneous art scenes with artists forming different nodes and establishing tight networks throughout the city—from Venice to East LA, and from the California Institute of the Arts in the north to the Brockman Gallery in Leimert Park. Artists utilized unconventional contexts including the street, the studio, the art school, and other public spaces to show and present their art while embracing performative and ephemeral actions to engage the public in more immediate ways.

ADEOLA DAVIES-AIYELOJA - ECHOES OF ANCESTORS: BEARING WITNESS TO THEIR LEGACY
The Elmina and Cape Coast castles might seem to be far away, but their history connects with our American history. The castles were relics of the continent’s early interactions with Europe. Several thousands of West Africans, mostly men, passed through the castles after being held in the dungeons. When I walked through the dungeons recently, it was terrifying to imagine the reality of what took place in these tiny suffocating rooms filled centuries ago. Then I think of our current state of injustice going on in the marginalized communities and the struggle to survive is so much aligned with the past.

BLACK CALIFORNIA DREAMIN’: CLAIMING SPACE AT AMERICA’S LEISURE FRONTIER

Access to nature, recreation, and sites of relaxation—in other words, leisure—is critical to pursuing the full range of human experience, self-fulfillment, and dignity. The exhibition illuminates Angelenos and other Californians who worked to make leisure here an open, inclusive reality in the first half of the twentieth century. In shaping recreational sites and public spaces during the Jim Crow era, African Americans challenged white supremacy and situated Black identity within oceanfront and inland social gathering places throughout California.

THE BONDWOMAN’S NARRATIVE
Written by Hannah Crafts; Edited by Henry Louis Gates, Jr.
Publisher: Warner Books

This novel was discovered some years ago, by distinguished Harvard professor Henry Louis Gates, Jr. in an auction catalog. Gates realized that the novel, if genuine, would be the first novel known to have been written by a black woman in America, as well as the only one by a fugitive slave. He bought the manuscript (there was no competing bid) and began the exhilarating task of confirming the racial identity of the author and the approximate date of composition (circa 1855-59). Gates describes this detective work in the introduction to The Bondwoman’s Narrative. He also proposes a couple of candidates for authorship, assuming that Hannah Crafts was the real or assumed name of the author, and not solely a pen name. If Gates is right (his introduction and appendix should convince just about everyone), The Bondwoman’s Narrative is a tremendous discovery, and is well worth reading on literary and historical grounds. As Gates argues, these pages provide our first “unedited, unaffected, unglossed, unaided” glimpse into the mind of a fugitive slave.

NEVER STOP DREAMING...

by Earline M. Gentry

Dr. King was a visionary he said it all
In his famous I have a dream speech Positive change is within our reach
A time when there will be freedom and justice for all Tearing down those invisible walls

Without reservation requires self-determination Woven into the fabric of self-preservation
Even in the midst of alienation
To believe in something takes heart
But where does one start?

We must continue to be inspired Inspired by the numerous possibilities that gives us hope Dreaming is all a part of life that enables us to cope
It’s like passing a Paton that’s how the race is won
And the beat goes on like the sound of a native drum
We must never give up even in the midst of life’s bitter cup
Images of equal opportunity will continue to erupt

Never Stop Dreaming...
Dreaming of a time when people of every nation and Creed
Come together because they truly believe Teaching our children when we all get along
By faith it can only make us strong Reaching far beyond our comfort zone
Where dreams become a reality taking on a life of its own That’s why you and I must never stop dreaming, Never stop dreaming, never stop dreaming ...
MEMORY HUG
by DreamKeypr

Holding steady shaky knees
Forming patterns in the breeze
Tap dancing fingertips Nervous glances concealing it

Smiles tickle tense relax
Words chat voice box raps
Retaining wall for sand and sea Friendly times came to be Extended hand reaching out Good connection showing out

Palms touch fingers fold Fond memories taking hold

Against scenic backdrop
Waves crashing canvas
This is how we do Absolute pleasure meeting two
THE MOMENT WHEN IT ARRIVED
by Malik Shakur

Death arrived this morning with little of no warning
It’s speed comes like a summer
Then leaves as it came
It rings no bells
Nor does it knock on your door
It’s like a unwelcome guest
That stop by takes what it needs
Then moves on
I saw death come that night
It sat down just off to the side from where I sat
I watch it as it watch me
Holding her hand
Giving her all the strength
I had in that moment
And permission for her let go
I saw death stand and walk towards me
It sat down next to me
Then whispered
It’s time
I looked into the darkness
Fight back all tears and emotions
Now racing through me at the speed of light
He whispered
she’ll be fine, now say goodbye
I looked in her eyes and said
I love you kissed he on the cheek

As her hand slipped from mine
To deaths as he helped her up
She stood tall, glowing
With the strength and peace
I had seen my whole e life her battle was over our life together done her voice silenced.
As they began to walk away, she Touched my face, causing me to smile
then Whispered
Goodbye my son know I will always love you

FAITH
by Eisha A. Mason

We are reaching toward each other through violence
all around us.
Past loud, angry voices, past history and fear.

We are reaching past roles assigned to us past hopelessness, despair.
Past trauma and suspicion - we struggle to connect.

Hard to believe we’ll make it, but what choice do we have?
Imagining our children’s future,
do we shrink back in fear?

We are reaching
to bridge the chasm, reaching to understand.
Praying to forgive them - praying to forgive ourselves.

Reaching for our shared humanity.
Reach!
Touch a spark of Light!
Recognize ourselves!
in one another.
One Life contains us all.

We are reaching for love.

Reaching to love.
Reaching because we are Love.
Reach out.

Don’t let go.
MENAGERIE OF MEMORIES
by C. Jerome Woods

Dear Mother
I thought I’d write you today
There are things I need to say
And send prayers your way

As Thanksgiving approaches
Conversation broaches
Water pools in the eyes
When mentioning you sweet potato pies

Pinnacle of my east to west
Origin of pride in my chest
Being the Son of you behest

You were my foundation
Let me know life wasn’t perfect
Let me know to live it to the fullest Cause I’m worth it

Because of you I stand staunch and proud Because of you I live out loud
You planted the mind seed; tools to think on my own
A staple from gestation to full grown

From me to you with gratitude; learning that will not cease
Dearest Mother continue to rest
In love
In power!
STEPPING OUT ON FAITH

by C. Jerome Woods

It can be difficult realizing People you once knew
Are no longer here.
They have shifted
From solid to soil, to significant memory
Present in another sphere.
Yet, we laugh, love, and cry
Experiencing loss and grief
We still ask why.
SISTAH POET BLUZ
by Roni Walter, Poet Roni Girl

sistah poet traveling solo speaks woman bluz in a jazz like rhythm she delivers hip hop messages with an ole school flow while sitting on the bus stop on crenshaw blvd or la brea ave born mississippi girl she dreams of invisible colors and finger paints her words into a soulful but poetic collage see, she the one that speaks in 3 voices and sings one gospel song she calls life and she double dares you she double dares you to deal with the dilemma that double dutches her onto dirt roads that never end she carries suitcases full of pain chants afro, indian folklore in the rain swims rivers backwards and when she can’t take it anymore she simply climbs mountains in her bare feet see, her soul is heavy and sometimes she dances child-like as she cries ancient tears into oceans filled with spirits who know her struggle she moves through life mostly off-key and when no one is home she sees God in the shadows of hope because you see sistah, poet traveling solo speaks in 3 voices as she finally comes full circle to sing one gospel song she calls life recycled words are like butter to my soul God blessed my pen
now I’m spinning broken english into poetic gold
SISTAH POET BLUZ
INSEPARABLE

by Sharon Williams

Oh, so long for this night I prayed that the Lord would send someone my way with endless love to stay.

At last my love has come along.
My lonely days are over, and life is like a song.

Endlessly you gave your love to me, and I knew that you needed me because I needed you so desperately.

Always and forever by your side, inseparable as two should be,
for truly my love,

God has joined us for eternity.
BLACK LOVE
by Malik Shakur

Love is an amazing thing
But Black love
Be something unexplainable.
it rises to the heavens and lingers above the skies just bright and sunny lite as a summer breeze it endures over time as trials and tribulations occur Tears of joy, happen sadness and grief are certain But
Black Love
moves with it keeping in step like the rhythm of a classic house track regardless of the day or the hour
its existence is timeless and will always
when He and She
She and Her
he and him
Or They and Them express it freely unconditionally continuous in its strength captivating its beauty joy and most of all
Its Resilience.
You see
BLACK Love
ain't nothing to mess with it fights to stay relevant centering its self with a purpose
a spiritual acknowledgment its mere presence is a revolution
Black Love
Encompasses generations of families and friends regardless of its size time or place
Black Love
is and always will be infinite in its expression between Black people
Irregardless of the conditions
My people may be in Black love is always a celebration.

DCA MANAGED HISTORIC SITES (2)

DCA provides conservation services and educational programming and tours for two of LA’s most treasured historic sites, Hollyhock House and the Watts Towers. Conservation efforts are coordinated through DCA’s Historic Site Preservation Office. DCA’s Museum Education and Tours Program coordinates tours and interpretive programs for both young people and adults.

Hollyhock House is Frank Lloyd Wright’s first Los Angeles project. Built between 1919 and 1921, it represents his earliest efforts to develop a regionally appropriate style of architecture for Southern California. Barnsdall Park, including the iconic Hollyhock House, was awarded landmark status in 2007 and listed on the National Register of Historic Places. As the nation’s highest historic landmark designation, the site has been formally recognized for its role in interpreting the heritage and history of the United States. Hollyhock House was inscribed on UNESCO’s World Heritage List in 2019.

Watts Towers, built over 34 years by Simon Rodia, are a Los Angeles icon. Built from found objects, including broken glass, sea shells, pottery, and tile, the Towers stand as a monument to the human spirit and the persistence of a singular vision. The Watts Towers, listed on the National Register of Historic Places, are a National Historic Landmark, a State of California Historic Park, and Historic-Cultural Monument No. 15 as previously designated by the City of Los Angeles Cultural Heritage Commission.
